

Sign In | Learn about NewsWorks

- Sixth Square
- Health + Science

Listen to WHY? | Latest Newscast

• Home

search...

go

American hikers
 Release rests in hands of Iran officials
 2:45 pm

Unused cash
 $26 million found in New Jersey bank accounts
 39 minutes ago

Education study
 Fewer teachers, larger classrooms in Pa.
 6:00 pm

THE FEED:
NEWS IN THE MAKING

newsworks BETA

Powered by WHY? and You

• Arts + Culture

• Blogs

• Delaware

• NW Philadelphia

- Roxborough/Manayunk/East Falls
- Mt. Airy/Chestnut Hill
- Germantown/West Oak Lane

So the stories go

April 28, 2011

By Peter Crimmins

Like

Rate This:

(4 votes) Ask a Question

Download Audio File »

Story slam participant Margot Leitman remembers her greatest performance: a phone dating profile she set up at 12-years old. (Peter Crimmins/For NewsWorks)

Rejection. Awkwardness. Failure. These are her richest elements for comedy.

"I have a story that ends with the line: 'At a time I felt really dead in my life, thank you for making me feel alive.' People laughed at that," said MargotLeitman, a memoir performer. "I'm thinking, 'You should be crying.' No, nobody's crying."

Leitman joined eight other performers on the stage of the Perelman Theater at the Kimmel Center for an evening of stand-up memoir. Philadelphia's First Person Arts imported them from across the country as part of the Philadelphia International Festival of the Arts.

All of the performers cut their teeth on the competitive story-slam circuit, wherein autobiographical performers vie for audience approval. Humor tends to get an immediate reaction.

Few of the performers have played in Philadelphia before. Although the reputation of Philly's notorious sports fans caused some apprehension, Leitman knew the audience would be people who "listen to NPR and read the New Yorker."

"In my head, I always say--even when I go for a job interview--I always do the 'Rocky' theme in my head. That's how I pump myself up," said storyteller Adam Wade. "It'll be nice to do the 'Rocky' theme in my head when I do a show in Philadelphia."

If there are story-slam stars, Wade may be one of them. He has won the Grand Slam several times at The Moth, a New York storytelling venue. In Philadelphia, he told a tale about his young obsession with Roy Orbison's song "Running Scared."

"It developed into its own personal meaning when I fell in love for the first time, when I was in fourth grade, with Mary Ellen Winters. She was an older woman, a sixth-grader," said Wade in the green room of the Perelman. "She had a boyfriend who was a popular sixth-grader. He looked like he was out of Teen Beat. I don't look like I'm in Teen Beat."

Wade discovered Mr. Orbison and Ms. Winters at the same time, and used the former to work up courage for the later. On stage, Wade uses his nervous energy, his rural New Hampshire drawl, and his geeky innocence to win over the audience to the emotional pratfalls of his childhood.

"I am what I am," said Wade. "It took me years to figure out I'm trying to be something I'm not. I'm a nervous guy, so when I'm up there, I'm shaking a little, I'm cracking a little, but there's a hidden confidence in that."

Unlike the narrator in "Running Scared," Wade didn't get the girl. But on Wednesday night he had the audience in his pocket.

Adam Wade, originally from rural New Hampshire now living in New York City, recalls his first love in 4th grade, his 6th grade rival, and the song that gave him courage to pursue it: Roy Orbison's "Runnin' Scared."

Use
the

« More from Arts + Culture

Like Newsworks' Journalism? Give \$5 to Newsworks NOW or LEARN HOW to text your donation. pull-down to filter comments based on other users' ratings:

Comments

More to Telling at Perelman Theater — NicoletteNH 2011-04-28 13:20
While at this "slam" the stories were not judged, for those who were there that night the clear "winner" of the evening was a Baltimore English teacher, Jon Aaron, whose account of keeping alive the memory of a daughter who died shortly after birth was poignant and the perfect healing story. His story was on the theme, "Wordly Possessions," was told with an economy of words, the perfect words, and had a clear story arc with a point of change that moved the story from being sad to uplifting. Too bad it wasn't mentioned in this article.

Storytellers — AmandaHug 2011-04-28 17:05

Have to disagree with the previous comment. Yes, there was no judging, which, as a regular on the Philly story scene, I really enjoyed the vibe brought to this event by the lack of scoring/competition. I sincerely thought the storytellers all did an amazing job. Many stories were hilarious or moving or gave the listener a good feel for who the storyteller was. I agree that Jon Aaron's lovely story was very moving. I also honestly, found it a tad freaky. However, were we judging, no one in the group of twelve I was with would have chosen that as "the winner" (based on informal polling). Just goes to show that it's all subjective. As for this story, I thought it was great to publicize Wade and Leitman. They are more high-profile and can help bring much-needed attention to the Philly Storytelling world. Would not have minded some words on Katonya Mosley, the local in the bunch, but I think it was a great piece anyway! It was a fantastic event

Refresh comments list

Please log in or register to post a comment.

THE UNIVERSITY OF THE ARTS
CONTINUING EDUCATION

Career ReDesign Fair + Open House

Wed., Sept. 21, 2011
5:30 - 7:30 pm

Top Stories

Testimonials and tributes pour in for slain Delaware police officer

September 17 - John Mussoni

More »

Smoke Signals: How intense should Philly's war on tobacco be?

September 17 - Chris Satullo

More »

Ackerman: I was threatened over the King charter deal

September 17 - Bill Hangley Jr.

Arlene Ackerman,
Philadelphia's recently departed superintendent of schools, claims she was threatened last spring with disclosure of embarrassing information about her personal finances if she did not help a politically connected bidder, Foundations Inc., land More »

At Perelman, 'Form in Motion' describes architectural integrity

September 17 - Peter Crimmins

Find us on Facebook

NEWSWORKS
Like

NEWSWORKS
Milestone celebration: Cooper Health Breast Cancer Support Group celebrates 10 years www.newsworks.org
 A South Jersey support group for women with breast cancer celebrated a milestone anniversary Friday night. Read more... --The Feed
 2 hours ago via dlvr.it

NEWSWORKS
Testimonials and tributes pour in for slain Delaware

1,632 people like NEWSWORKS.

Debra Heath Jude Clark Theresa Donna
 Innovative John Oluwatoyin Michelle Pavel

Facebook social plugin

BLOGS

DAVE DAVIES OFF MIC

Dave Davies

Pennsylvania Democrat breaks with Obama, and other local matters:
If Democrats can lose Anthony Weiner's seat in New York More »

BRANDYWINE TO BROAD

Jan C. Ting

Why the Solyndra scandal may destroy the Obama presidency:
In its desperate effort to generate "green jobs", the Obama More »

NATIONAL INTEREST

Dick Polman

Whopper of the week:
You could get rich collecting a dime for every time More »

CENTRE SQUARE

Chris Satullo

Smoke Signals: How intense should Philly's war on tobacco be?:
Which annoys you more? People who spew tobacco smoke into the More »

GROUND LEVEL

Nicole Juday

And the winners are in:
Gardeners are a self selecting population. Yes, they are often More »

MOM & POPAHOLIC

Erica David

Recycle Studios: New life for old trends:
I like a good trend. It keeps me in step More »

More Blogs »

PARTNERS

theArtblog.org
Azavea
Committee of Seventy DVAEYC
The Fallser
G-town Radio
LaSalle University - GermantownBeat
Leadership Philadelphia
NewCORE

NJ Spotlight
Penn Project for Civic Engagement
Philadelphia Daily News
Philadelphia Weekly
The Philadelphia Public School Notebook
PhilaPlace.org
PlanPhilly.com
Temple Multimedia Urban Reporting Lab
University of the Arts
WURD Radio

WHYY

Homepage
Audio Video

NEWSWORKS

About Us
How We're Funded
Terms of Service
Advertise
Privacy Statement
Jobs at NewsWorks
Discussion Rules
RSS Feeds

© 2011 WHYY - Email NewsWorks

Built by Delmarva Group, LLC.